Students pay 24 per cent of UM budget

Montana Kaimin Legislative Bureau

Helena

University of Montana student fees contributed more to the University's total income in 1973 than student fees at any other university unit, according to statistics put out at the end of January, by the Commission on Post-Secondary Education.

Of the University's total income, 24.46 per cent came from student fees. This represents a student fee contribution of about $3.56 million, according to estimates in the Budgetary Data handbook for fiscal year 1973-74, printed in May, 1973.

The University also has more students from which to extract the fees. UM enrollment for Fall Quarter, 1973, was an estimated 8,448, compared to the next highest enrollment of 8,025 at Montana State University.

The estimates for fee contributions were made prior to a recent increase of $5.50 in student fees at UM. The estimates refer to the $157 currently charged for registration, incidentals, building, student union, University Center operation, student activities and health service fees.

Conversely MSU, which also charges an average of about $157 a quarter in fees, uses student fees as 21.2 per cent of their total income.

At other units in the university system, student fees contribute from 10 per cent at Montana School of Mines and Technology (Tech) and 11.23 per cent at Northern Montana College (NMC), to 17 per cent at Eastern Montana College (EMC) and 18.3 per cent at Western Montana College (WMC).

Student fees were only one source of income compared by the Blue Ribbon Commission, formally known as the Commission on Post-Secondary Education. Other sources adding to the total income of the university units were the general fund, millage (a set six-mill levy on real and personal property) and "other sources" such as grants, endowments, sales and services of university facilities.

Tickets going fast

The University of Montana ticket office announced yesterday that tickets to the Montana-Idaho State game are being sold fast. Students are urged to buy theirs immediately in order to be sure of getting one.

Unpaid fines halt enrollment if Carl's bill passes house

Montana Kaimin Legislative Bureau

Helena

A bill designed to prohibit university students with unpaid traffic fines from registering for school, sponsored by Sen. Fred Carl, R-Missoula, has passed the Senate and passed a House committee with a "do pass" recommendation.

Carl testified in favor of his bill which would give state universities the power to withhold registration packets of students with unpaid traffic fines.

Universities are "sort of like the Vatican," Carl told the House Judiciary Committee yesterday. He explained that the universities are separate entities from the cities in which they are located and that they do not rely on the city's justice system for enforcing traffic fines.

An amendment to forbid the universities from withholding grades or transcripts until traffic fines were paid was withdrawn because of constitutional questions. The constitution says a bill cannot be changed substantially from its original intent.

Rep. Bill Warfield, R-Livingston, said the amendment was a 180 degree turn from the original purpose of the bill. Originally the bill had allowed the universities to withhold grades, registration packets or transcripts, but the prohibition on withholding grades and transcripts was deleted in the Senate.

Mitchell explains hiring controversy

George Mitchell, UM administrative vice president, told Central Board last night that the Faculty Athletic Committee should have been consulted prior to the January hiring of Gene Carlson as assistant football coach.

"It was predominately my fault that the committee wasn't informed," Mitchell said, explaining he thought at the time the hiring did not involve recruitment so the committee did not have to be consulted. He said he now thinks any athletic staff addition should be referred to the committee.

Carlson was hired as coach and Century Club executive secretary with funds donated to the University by Century Club, a Grizzly booster group.

Mitchell said he consulted Kathleen Holden, University equal employment officer, before the hiring but that she might not have known that Carlson's salary would be paid through the University.

Mitchell said a team of Health, Education and Welfare officials will visit the University in March and will talk to the people involved before rendering an opinion on the legality of the hiring.

Mitchell also answered questions about the impoundment of CB's $153 allocation to the Committee to Un-elect the President.

Calvin Murphy, UM business manager, withheld payment of the committee's bills until the legality of the allocation could be confirmed, Mitchell said. Murphy asked Mitchell to consult Atty. Gen. Robert Woodahl on the legality of the allocation. Mitchell received a reply by telephone "within a day or two" stating the funding was illegal because it was "not a public group, but rather private or political," according to Mitchell.

JP orientation appropriation waiting for House approval

Montana Kaimin Legislative Bureau

Helena

The Senate yesterday passed to the House a measure that would give $15,600 to the University of Montana Law School for a justice of the peace orientation course. A companion measure that transfers the orientation course from the Montana Magistrate's Association to the law school passed the Senate two weeks ago and is now in the House.

Presently, all elected or appointed justices of the peace who are not attorneys or have not held the JP office within the preceding five years must take the course.

The Law School would conduct the course "as soon as practical" following each general election if both measures pass; as is expected.

In other business, the Senate killed a measure that would have permitted fathers in the delivery room, axed a bill that creates a state lottery and passed a measure that outlaws firecrackers and "bottle rockets."

By a 39 to 4 vote, the Senate accepted a do not pass committee recommendation on Rep. Dick Colberg's bill that would have allowed fathers in the delivery room during childbirth.

Colberg's bill promotes the LaMaze method of childbirth where the father helps the mother with breathing and encouragement. Colberg said during a committee hearing that the LaMaze technique has not produced diseases in newborn children, nor has it ever resulted in a malpractice suit because a doctor was distracted by the father.

Hospital administrators said the bill could create undue financial and facility burdens on rural hospitals.

A state lottery went to a quick death as senators voted 40 to 6 to accept an adverse Senate Select Committee on Gambling report. The measure, sponsored by Whitefish Rep. Robert Brown, a Republican, barely passed the House several weeks ago.

Law school accreditation report may not be released for meeting

The University of Montana law school accreditation report may not be released to the Faculty Senate in time for its next meeting, Keith McDuffie, Faculty Senate chairman, said yesterday.

The Senate had requested the confidential report be made public by its next meeting, Feb. 28, in a resolution to UM President Robert Pantzer.

In a letter to McDuffie, Pantzer said that he had asked Robert Sullivan, law school dean, to take whatever steps were necessary to see that the confidentially ban was removed as soon as possible.

The law school accreditation team classified the report confidential when it presented the team's findings to the law school and Pantzer. The accreditation team represented the American Bar Association and the Association of American Law Schools.

Pantzer made it clear in his letter that it was not the administration that had classified the report, but the accreditation team.

Neither the accreditation team's findings or conclusions have been made public.

The Senate will vote on the Associate of Arts degree proposal at its next meeting, McDuffie said.

Story corrected

In yesterday's Montana Kaimin Richard Konizeski, forestry professor, was incorrectly quoted as saying, "I like the tactics of many of them," in reference to UM environmentalists. The quote should have read, "I don't like the tactics of many of them."

Also, Dale Burk's name was incorrectly spelled Burke in yesterday's Kaimin. Burk is the Missoulian state editor.

The proposal would allow a student to receive an Associate of Arts degree after completing 98 credits of course work. A student would take 21 credits, 7 credits in each of the three areas of humanities and fine arts, life and physical sciences and social sciences. There is a 60-credit limit on total credits applicable to the degree in any one of the three areas.

The proposed credit/no credit grading system has been returned to the curriculum committee for reconsideration.

The credit/no credit grading system could conflict with federal regulations on work-study programs and veterans benefits.

Under the proposed credit/no credit system, no record would be made of a student's academic failure. A student failing a course would have no record on his transcript that he even attempted the course.

Students busted for possession

Two University of Montana students, Daniel Morrison, senior in business administration, and Deborah Biegel, freshman in music, were arrested Friday night for felonious possession of dangerous drugs.

Morrison was charged with possession of amphetamine and possession of more than 60 grams of marijuana. Bond was set at $500. He is in jail awaiting a preliminary hearing scheduled for tomorrow.

Biegel is charged with possession of amphetamine. She was released in her father's custody pending preliminary hearing Feb. 28.

Two other Missoula residents were also charged with various counts of possession of dangerous drugs in the weekend arrest.

AP in brief

Ashes and charred bone fragments, believed to be the remains of Sandra Dykman Smallegan, 19, were found on a ranch near Logan Tuesday. She has been missing since the night of Feb. 9. Her car was found last weekend sealed in a shed on the same ranch. The area of the apparent cremation site is about 12 miles from the Missouri River Headwaters State Monument where a 7-year-old Michigan girl vanished last summer.

The Supreme Court yesterday in a 6 to 3 decision approved the use of evidence gathered by court-ordered wiretaps against persons not specifically under surveillance. In dissent, Justice William Douglas said the decision apparently means that wiretap warrants "need specify but one name and a national dragnet becomes operative." Justices William Brennan and Thurgood Marshall also dissented.

The Montana Legislature sent Congress a request yesterday for a constitutional amendment to outlaw abortions and euthanasia. By a 34-12 vote, the Montana Senate gave final approval to the House-passed resolution.

Navy yeoman Charles Radford testified yesterday that for a year he secretly obtained volumes of sensitive diplomatic information from the White House and prepared it for delivery to the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He said he acted at all times at the request of his military superiors, who cautioned him to keep secret the funneling of White House files to the Pentagon.

Long lines and short tempers are adding up to violence at some gasoline stations around the nation. A service station owner in Gary, Ind., was shot and killed Tuesday night and a customer was wounded in an argument that began over a spare tire. A gas station attendant in San Jose, Calif., was attacked by four men and a woman and fended them off by spraying them with gasoline. In Hawaii, one man was charged with felony assault for attacking another motorist with a tire iron during a wait on a gasoline line.

The Soviet Union test-fired a big new missile with multiple warheads into the Pacific Tuesday, the Pentagon announced. This was the second round of new missile tests from within the Soviet Union in less than a month.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arrived in Mexico City yesterday for a Latin American foreign ministers' conference where he is expected to face attempts to obtain a more lenient U.S. policy toward Communist Cuba. State Department officials have said Kissinger has no intention of altering the 12-year economic blockade imposed on Cuba by the U.S.

Israeli Premier Golda Meir announced last night she was forming a minority government, the first in Israel's history. Moshe Dayan, who has threatened to resign over criticism of his handling of the October War, was invited to remain as defense minister.

American wheat production, three to four times what can be consumed domestically, requires that exports be increased and not curbed, Richard Goodman, associate administrator of the USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service, told the Pacific Northwest Farm Forum in Spokane yesterday. He said the nation's upcoming wheat crop should reach over 2 billion bushels, with exports of about half the total, and stockpiling of about a quarter.

Senate-House conferees agreed yesterday on a compromise bill which would provide $800 million in federal funds to meet deficits of mass transit systems. Sen. Harrison Williams Jr., D-N.J., chief sponsor of the bill, said there had been some indications President Nixon, who has previously opposed such subsidies, might look with favor on the measure.

Muckelston to assume dean's job; Sullivan on four-month sabbatical Sandra Muckelston, assistant law school dean, will assume the duties of Law School Dean Robert Sullivan during his four month leave of absence.

Muckelston is a 1971 University of Montana Law School graduate and has been assistant dean since 1972. She was the council for two committees of the constitutional convention in 1972.

Sullivan began his sabbatical February 16. During his leave he will lecture at three Irish universities, attend the annual meeting of the American Law Institute and visit 12 western law schools to examine different methods of operation.

Sullivan said his plans include research and writing on consumer credit. He is a member of an American Bar Association committee on consumer credit.

House tentatively okays vets bill

Montana Kaimin Legislative Bureau

Helena
Approximately 9,800 former servicemen could receive a bonus under HB 305 if they were residents of Montana when they entered the service and if they served in Southeast Asia between Jan. 1, 1961 and March 31, 1973.

The bill would provide $18.75 to each Montana serviceman for each month he was in Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia or Thailand. Receiving $750 would be prisoners of war and direct survivors of a serviceman who had died or is missing in action.

Application for the benefits would be made to the state board of examiners. An appropriation bill of $2.5 million is being studied by the House Finance and Claims Committee.

Tentatively accepting the Vietnam veterans' bonus bill on a unanimous vote were 88 House members. Attempts to amend the bill and include all Montanans who had served in the armed forces during the same period were defeated by a 23 vote margin.

City wants to buy railroad depot

The city of Missoula is interested in buying the Milwaukee Road Railroad depot when the option on the building terminates at the end of this month.

Mayor Robert Brown said Tuesday he has informed the railroad's lawyers that the city will be willing to negotiate for the depot, which is situated west of the Higgins Avenue Bridge on the south side of the Clark Fork River.

Mayor Brown said if the city buys the depot, a committee should be established to decide the best way to utilize the building.

"I myself would like to see a children's theater and rooms used for ceramics and the like," Brown said. "But it will be up to the community to decide how it wants to use it."

The 64-year-old depot has not been used as a passenger station for 10 years. It now houses offices for the Milwaukee Road.

In a related action the City Council is studying the development of a zoning ordinance which would preserve historical buildings, such as the depot.

Alderman Walter Hill, UM associate professor of chemistry, who proposed the ordinance, said it would prevent changes of the "pristine exterior" of buildings with historical value.

Hill said the city is also trying to record the depot on the National Register of Historical Buildings.

SUB suggestion could curtail minor's use of recreation center

Complaints from UM students, vandalism, and excessive loitering have caused Student Union Board to consider banning persons under 18 years of age from the UC Recreation Center.

SUB agreed to review a proposal made by Tayah Kalgaard, SUB member, concerning restriction of the recreation center use to persons over 18 years of age. Kalgaard also suggested that UC managers be allowed to remove loitering younger persons from the UC, and that children be chaperoned when in the UC.

She also said letters should be sent to Missoula high schools and grade schools, notifying the students of SUB's intentions. SUB will decide what changes should be made in the proposal, and will vote on its acceptance later this week.

Kalgaard's proposal was prompted

Bikeway funding gets House okay

Montana Kaimin Legislative Bureau

Helena
Tentative House approval of a Montana Traffic Safety Act sent state partial funding of bikeways closer to reality by a 68 to 17 vote.

After the vote Rep. Gorham Swanberg, D-Great Falls, asked Speaker of the House Harold Gerke, D-Billings, for an opinion from the state highway department as to whether the funding for the bikeways could be considered a diversion of money from the state highway fund.

However, the administrator of the legal division for the highway department, N. A. Rotering issued an opinion yesterday afternoon that "the installation of such paths (bikeways) or trails can be justified on the same basis that sidewalks, pedestrian walkways on bridges, and similar features are; that is, they are necessary to provide a safe highway."

Federal funds of up to $2 million for each state are available as matching funds for bikeway construction.

Skiers to defend championship Fasching concerts are successful

The University of Montana ski team will be in Boise, Ida. this weekend to defend its title at the Big Sky Conference ski meet.

Coach Craig Brandon said that Montana State has the best chance of taking the crown at this year's meet.

"They have built a fantastic team this year," Brandon said. "They've got the only full team in the conference. They will be the team to beat at the Big Sky meet."

Brandon said UM will be strong contenders again this year.

"We have a strong team this year," Brandon said. "The worst we could do in this meet would be to take second place."

Brandon said freshman skier Trygve Hastagen is one good reason why UM could repeat as Big Sky champions. Hastagen, a cross-country skiing specialist, was rated in the top 30 skiers in Norway last year. Teammates and fellow Norwegians Birger Rustberggard and Jan Brentebraten provide the Grizzly team with back-up strength.

The first and second place finisher in each individual event will qualify for the NCAA championship meet to be held in Jackson Hole, Wyo. The first place team in the Alpine and Nordic competitions also qualifies for the NCAA meet.

Other members of the UM team are: John Schukie, Steve Hanson, George Jamison, Kevin Wildgen and Bruce Garlinghouse.

The three nights of concerts during Missoula Fasching this weekend "went over extremely well," according to Dave Snyder, Program Council concert coordinator.

"The smoothest show of the whole weekend was Anne Murray's," Snyder said. A crowd of about 2,400 attended the concert on Friday night. "Normally, we would have lost money on that, but the audience was mostly general, not students, so we made a little."

Although the final bills are not in yet, Friday night's profit was probably $1,000 to $2,000 Snyder said.

The most curious of the shows was the Beach Boys' concert on Saturday night, Snyder said. "Seeing someone who has been around longer than the Beatles is more than nostalgia."

An audience of nearly 5,000 attended the Beach Boys' concert Saturday night, and a profit of about $1,500 is estimated, Snyder said.

A rumor that the Beach Boys came back and played a second set after most people had gone, or that they wanted to play more is "in mitigated bullshit," Snyder said.

Sunday night about 4,200 people attended the all-night Blue Grass Breakfast special.

Three times as many people as were expected remained until 5 a.m. for breakfast, and all of the nearly 1,400 were served by 7 a.m.

Griz to duel Idaho State

The top two teams of the Big Sky Conference meet tomorrow night in the Field House when the Grizzlies meet Idaho State University.

Idaho State is number one in the league, a lead that has gone unchallenged for several games. The Bengals lead in team offense with 80.2 points per game followed by Montana with 77.8 Idaho State is shooting 71 per cent from the free throw line.

The Grizzlies are first in team defense, holding their opponents to an average of 63 points. Weber State is second at 65.7.

Montana's Ken McKenzie is first in individual scoring at 18.7 and first in rebounding with 11.5.

The Bengals came off of last weekend having destroyed Gonzaga (77-55) and Idaho 94-60, while the Grizzlies "did not play very well" last weekend against Northern Arizona and Weber State according to UM Coach Jud Heathcote.

The Grizzlies opened the season against Idaho State in Pocatello losing 66-52.

"We are in the same position as we have been for several weeks because a loss would eliminate us," Heathcote said. If Montana does win against Idaho State, all Montana can hope for is a tie for the conference title if Montana loses no other games and if Idaho State does not lose any more. In the event of a tie, a playoff game would be played. The home floor would be decided by a coin toss.

Cubs lose again

The Montana freshmen Cubs lost their last road game of the season to North Idaho Junior College Saturday in Cour d'Alene, 93-78.

Mike Steinberg and Mike Richardson were Cub high scorers with 18 points each. Ted Ori had 16 and Bruce Groesbeck 10. Richardson had 10 rebounds.

Tomorrow evening the Cubs play the College of Great Falls junior varsity and Saturday face the Intramural All Stars.

NIT bid possible

University of Montana Sports Information Director George Fultz said yesterday that Idaho State officials do not want a playoff game if UM and ISU do tie for the Big Sky Conference championship.

ISU Sports Publicist Glenn Alford said that ISU has been in contact with Madison Square Garden's National Invitational Tournament (NIT) invitation committee, according to Fultz. The NIT said that it would possibly invite a conference co-champion but not a playoff loser.

UM Basketball Coach Jud Heathcote said that the issue is one to consider because it could mean more money for the conference.

Women gymnasts win in Boise

University of Montana Women's Gymnastics Coach Sharon Dinkle said that her charges did well last weekend in Boise, winning the optional competition.

UM's Barb Winslow and Kay Kilby took first and second in the all-around scoring to lead Montana to 79.75-45.50 margin over Boise State. Utah State trailed with 38.05 points.

In the compulsory exercise UM competed on only two of the three levels that were scored and finished well behind winner Utah State.

There are an estimated 23,000 stones in the Washington Monument.
